Tyson Library Celebrating New Website

The library's new website launched at the end of September. Patrons can navigate to their Evergreen catalog and account, Libby, and Wowbrary. To celebrate the site's new look and improved accessibility, Tyson Library has been giving away VISA gift cards

Writer's Workshops Inspire in October

Cafes to Continue in November

All month, Tyson Library has provided the resources for teen and adult writers to take their ideas and turn them into stories. Each week the exercises provided have built upon of the prior week's work to give the participants the ability to plan out some key elements of what could become a novel.

One patron's story has taken off after working through some of the character and plot planning exercises, according to Aly Wright, youth services librarian at Tyson Library.

Aly is leading the weekly sessions. Adults and teens are invited to join these weekly sessions. Aly will continue to provide a great writing environment and opportunity for community Tuesdays at 4 p.m. throughout November.

each week in October. So, there's one more chance to win! Go to the library's Facebook page to see how to enter to win on Monday, October 28.

BOOK REVIEW

Assistant to the Villain

Reviewer: Aly Wright, Tyson Library Staff

I really like this book and how the author is writing the series. It is a well written, nicely established fantasy world and with plenty of funny moments. It's about a grumpy villain and his sunshine assistant. A lot of hijinks and fantasy-related trouble. I would definitely recommend this book to others, especially if you like fantasy romance or "touch her and die" tropes. This book will have you laughing out loud and dying for the next one.

ONLINE RESOURCE

BALLOTPEDIA
The Encyclopedia of American Politics

Ballotpedia is a great resource for all election-related information. Early voting is underway in Indiana. If you have questions about who and/or what is on the ballot in your district, this is a great place to start.

Ballotpedia.org

You can look up a particular candidate and see who's endorsed them, which commercials the candidate has run, and pro and con arguments around ballot measures.
